ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

15 A drive controlling means includes a final angle position memorizing means for memorizing a final angle position at a time of termination of the vehicle driving operation, an input complete data memorizing means capable of switching the memory content between a first memory condition and a second memory condition. The first 20 memory condition indicates completeness of writing of the final angle position in the final angle position memorizing means. The second memory condition indicates failure in writing the final angle position therein. The input complete data memorizing means is capable of maintaining the memory content even when the vehicle is stationary.
